

Part I: Overview

Dinner Decider (or Dindin , or Supsup , or... hmmm)
<ul style="list-style-type: none">What is the purpose of this site?	<ul style="list-style-type: none">For groups of two or more people to come to a consensus on what/where to eat for dinner: each person enters in their ranked choices and the app will process the info and present the most agreed upon option. Could also be an optional game element in cases where there is no clear consensus, or folks could challenge to have their #1 choice more heavily weighted.
<ul style="list-style-type: none">Who is the audience for your site? What age and demographic information would describe a typical user?	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Couples, families and friend groups looking to find somewhere to eat they can agree on—or, if they can't agree, they can have fun while coming to a fair decision :)Restaurants looking to have their details entered accurately so they can attract more customers by meeting their needs (such as, dietary options, accessibility, hours, etc).Search Engines
<ul style="list-style-type: none">What sites already exist that are similar to your vision in terms of purpose, functionality, and/or look & feel?	<ul style="list-style-type: none">GrubHub / UberEats / DoorDash / OpenTable / Deliveroo / Caviar, etc.https://www.tripinfo.com/tips/selecting-a-restaurant-for-group-dining More parameters to consider?
<ul style="list-style-type: none">What should the feel/personality of the site be?	<ul style="list-style-type: none">Fun, friendly, easy, dynamic (decisions are being made!!), trustworthy

Part II: Moodboard

Initial color palette ideas: fun, bright, tasty!

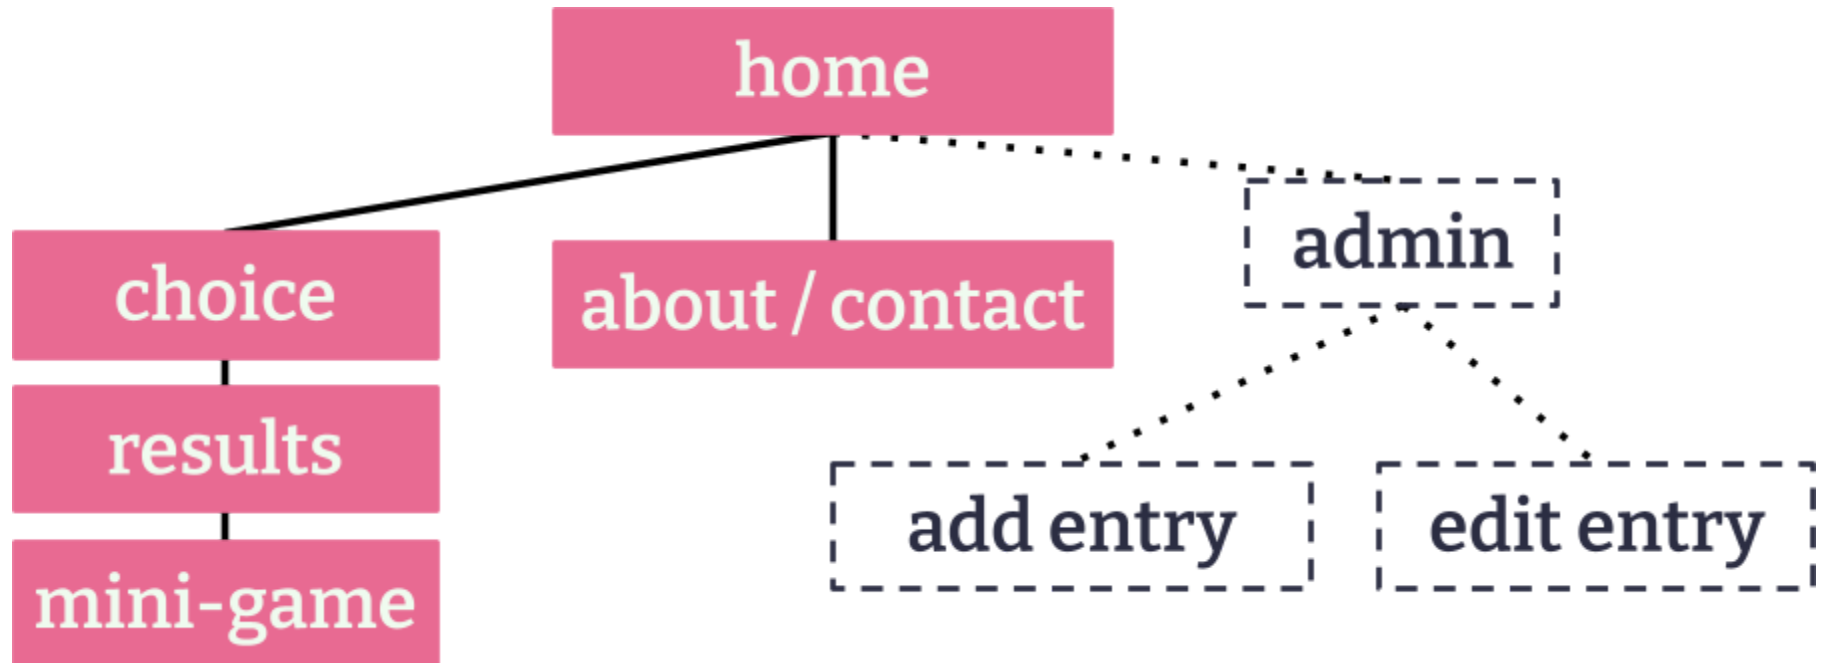

Add touches of animation (transitions, animated gifs, stock images with small animated decoration added) to underscore that we're all here to take action and decide what/where to eat! Also, could keep it super simple by leaning on emojis for the main graphics.

³ I'm not sure at all what to do, if anything, for the idea of challenging the decision... flip a coin (i.e., random with perhaps a debuff to the person who initiates the challenge), or maybe some simple, classic mini game like snake or pong?
